

Survey on the manipulation of protective devices

The Institute for Occupational Safety and Health of the German Social Accident Insurance (IFA) is conducting a survey to assess the current relevance of this topic. The survey asks, among other things, how the participants view the current level of defeating and what measures could contribute to reducing this level.

The survey is aimed at experts in companies. It takes about five minutes to answer the questions.

The survey questionnaire (available only in German) can be found here:
