

Comprehensive instruction/training of operators

Step4 of 5

Operator training

You as a manufacturer can make an important contribution to safe operation of machinery by ensuring that the machine operators are comprehensively trained in the correct machinery operation – in all modes of operation including maintenance.

Information and training regarding safety and health protection when using the machine are part of the instruction; for example:

- conditions of use
- foreseeable incidents during work
- foreseeable hazards during work
- obligatory checks of the protective equipment
- use of personal protective equipment (PPE)

The instruction and training provided should be documented. This documentation should at least provide information on trainees, trainers, date and subject of training.

Further information:

Information leaflet of SUVA : Training and instruction – basics for safety at work (available in german, italian and french)

continue to step 5